working with the bereaved summarizes the major themes in bereavement research and clinical work and uses the authors' own cutting edge research to show mental health practitioners how to integrate these themes into their practice it provides clinicians with a framework for exploring their own emotional and intellectual assumptions about loss and bereavement and it goes on to summarize state of the art thinking in the field the heart of the book focuses on the theoretical and clinical implications of the empirically validated two track model of bereavement as well as a variety of therapeutic techniques designed to help the bereaved both reapproach life and manage their continuing bonds with the deceased the later chapters examine methods for integrating systems and family perspectives in therapy for attending to the implications of culture and religion and for meeting crises and emergencies in bereavement care the concluding chapter addresses self care well being and resilience offering practical guidelines for both the bereaved and those who treat them grief is frequently thought of as an ordeal we must simply survive this book offers a fresh approach to the negotiation of death and grief it is founded in principles of constructive conversation that focus on remembering lives in contrast to processes of forgetting or dismembering those who have died remembering is about a comforting life enhancing and sustaining approach to death that does not dwell on the pain of loss and is much more than wistful reminiscing it is about the deliberate construction of stories that continue to include the dead in the membership of our lives this handbook which presents specific interventions and the rationale behind them is an essential resource for beginning and experienced clinicians writing from a multicultural perspective the authors discuss individual and group approaches to assessment and intervention in a variety of settings from hospices to hospitals to schools to private practice what do you say after you've said sorry for your trouble this is not just a book for the bereaved but for everyone who is unsure how to act and what to say when faced with friends family loved ones colleagues and acquaintances who have been bereaved life after loss was written for what the author calls the second circle who are dealing with the bereavement of others they include family friends colleagues employers carers nurses doctors priests pastors social workers and counsellors drawing on twenty years of lecturing training and broadcasting on the subject of bereavement christy kenneally has put together a book filled with human interest anecdote and even humour concentrates on the consolidation of ancient cultures and methods of caring for the dying and grieving this book contains three chapters on japan that emphasize traditional beliefs contain the history of the death awareness movement and review the available palliative care services a historical examination of african christianity in botswana as now expressed in the african independent church the study charts the development of this popular movement as a form of christianity based on a mingling of african experiences of human existence and teachings of the universal church it describes how the african independent church developed alongside the tswana church and the batswana people as a rejection of the white missionaries attack on tswana culture and paternalism and under the influence of the independent church movement in south africa during apartheid the author maintains this resulted in a church that is compatible with acceptable and relevant to the indigenous culture and which is simultaneously a genuinely african version of christianity
